Singleton Horticulture Project

Comment on Referral to EPA

Chain Consulting expresses our strong support of the Singleton Horticulture Project that has been referred to the NT EPA by Fortune Agribusiness for environmental approval.

Chain Consulting has been active in the Northern Territory for several years in supporting agricultural, aquacultural and mining industries in the development and implementation of their business models that supports the Northern Territory Government target of a $40bn economy by 2030. In reviewing the extensive documents that Fortune Agri have compiled and submitted for referral, it is evident that there is a strong understanding of the obligations and risk mitigation in managing the unique water resource that is being proposed for the Singleton Horticulture project.

The benefits from the Singleton Horticulture Project will have a profound social and economic benefit not just the for the Northern Territory but also for the future development of the Barkly Region across population growth, existing and future businesses, employment opportunities, development of supporting industries and social infrastructure, engagement with Indigenous local population and surrounding communities along with training programs associated with the agricultural industry and personal development.

We look forward to the development of the Singleton Horticulture Project and the sustainable opportunities that will be generated from this unique development.
